About us

The German Spice Association is the umbrella organization of about 90 spice processing and refining companies in Germany. They are primarily engaged in refining spices and producing spice blends, spice preparations and seasoning ingredients. 2018, the total turnover of the German spice associations members was around 1.2 billion Euros.

Most relevant partners of these companies in the value chain are spice importers: This is due to their commodity knowledge and trade experience, their worldwide connections, specific local knowledge and continuous market observation.

Our portfolio for your success

In figures, Germany imports around 131,000 t of spices annually. In quantitative terms, pepper and paprika come first, followed by nutmeg, caraway, coriander and ginger. The spice industry covers the demand for spices in the households, in the catering trade and in the b2b trade. At the same time, spices and spice blends play an important role in both the industrial and craft sectors of the food industry, especially in the meat processing sector.
